Former Greenwood County Sheriff Daniel celebrates his 90th birthday in August 2015 at the Dole DrMn.

DANIEL

who was hired by Daniel in 1975. "He's as honest as the day is long. He would give you the shirt off his back but he would also expect you to do your job."

Daniel, a U.S. Navy veteran who spent three years aboard the USS Hornet aircraft carrier in World War II, died Monday afternoon, June 4, 2019.

Greenwood County's fifth sheriff, Daniel had already been a deputy for nearly 20 years when he ran for the top elected office. He grew the department from 10 deputies to 50 by the time he retired.

"When Sheriff Daniel came to work there was only one shift, seven days a week, 24 hours a day. During his tenure he established a work schedule with four shifts and a detective division," says a biographical sketch of Daniel hanging at the sheriff's office.

Daniel himself remarked on the myriad changes that accompanied his tenure during an exit interview with the Index-Journal in March 1988.

"When I started, it was moonshine and whiskey. We never heard of drugs until the 1960s. Heroin was something you heard of from other cities until a few years ago," Daniel said.

Precisely as ever, the sheriff made an observation that Greenwood County officials echo today.

"Drugs are the ruin of young and old people that are hooked. A lot of crime stems from the use of drugs. They'll kill you for it!"

Born Aug. 25, 1925 in Greenwood County, Daniel was a product of the local school system, but dropped out at age 17 to join the Navy. Stationed aboard the USS Hornet, Daniel was discharged in 1946. He bought a service station on Montague Avenue and ran it until December, when he obtained a GED.

After developing an interest in joining the state Highway Patrol, then-Sheriff J. Cal White offered him a job in Greenwood County instead.

"I had been away from home for a long time so I took the deputy job Oct. 1, 1947 at the age of 22," Daniel said. "Back then there was only one shift. When you weren't sleeping, you were working."

Between his Navy service and time spent working in the city's cotton mills, Daniel's work ethic—and sense of fairness—became a hallmark of his career.

"He was one of the finest men that I ever knew. He was a true gentleman in every sense of the word and I consider it one of the greatest blessings of my law enforcement career that I got my start under Sheriff Daniel. It was a great department to be a part of," said Greenwood Police Chief Gerald Brooks, who was hired by Daniel in 1976.

"Sheriff Daniel and his command staff were right on track. I was a real young guy and didn't know the first thing about law enforcement, and he really believed the golden rule also applied in law enforcement, and to treat people just as well as they let us treat them," Brooks said.

In 1979, Daniel was named "Sheriff of the Year" by the South Carolina Sheriff's Association, and was awarded an Order of the Palmetto, the state's highest civilian honor, by Gov. Carroll Campbell in December 1988.

Daniel remained a confidant to those who not only were hired by the veteran lawman, but also followed in his footsteps. In August 2017, Daniel attended the funeral of Sam Riley, who followed Daniel as sheriff. Another Daniel protégé, Riley in 1988 had high praise for his former boss.

"I've seen him stand up for what he thought was right and I've seen him put his life on the line," Riley said. "I hope he will continue to offer advice in the coming years."

That's exactly what he did, Sheriff Dennis Kelly said, who made weekly trips to American Legion Post 20 breakfast meetings part of his routine just to learn from Daniel.

"He's always giving me advice. He was very articulate and very bright. He had a sharp mind," Kelly said. "He's going to be missed. He was a good man."

Former Sheriff Dan Wideman didn't work for Daniel, but got to know him when he was running for the office. It sparked a friendship that continued for years.

"He was a true hero for Greenwood County, there's no doubt about that. A lot of people have their careers to thank because of him," Wideman said. "He's a legend."

Just two weeks ago, Daniel attended a retirement luncheon at the sheriff's office, wearing his trademark "USS Hornet" cap and mingling with colleagues, including Lina Blizard, who Daniel hired on as the county's first female deputy.

"There were not that many females arrested back in the 1960s when he first went in, but then when one was arrested, I was the one that had to go down and do the processing. He said if I was doing the work, I ought to get paid for the job," Blizard said.

"His door was always open to anybody who wanted to talk," she continued, "it didn't matter if you were top of the line or bottom of the line and as far as being a boss, when he had enough of whatever the problem was, there was no doubt in your mind he was going to take care of it."

Daniel laid out his approach to policing in a lengthy statement that ran in the April 1, 1980 edition of the Index-Journal.

"None of us have to be reminded of the wave of lawlessness that is sweeping our land. The hue and cry comes from every corner, posing the question what can be done to preserve this trend," Daniel wrote. "I have dedicated my every effort to setting an example of a good citizen and establishing a record of honesty, sobriety and fairness as your sheriff."

Parents decry actions of man who threw boy from balcony

Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — The parents of a 5-year-old Minnesota boy who survived being thrown from a third-floor balcony at the Mall of America decried the assailant's actions as "evil" while saying they forgave him at a hearing Monday where a judge handed down a 19-year prison sentence.

Emmanuel Aranda showed little emotion during his hearing. When Hennepin County District Judge Jeannice Reding asked whether Aranda wanted to say anything on his own behalf, the 24-year-old Minneapolis man responded with a simple, "No." Reding then sentenced him to the term he agreed to when he pleaded guilty last month to attempted premeditated first-degree murder in the April 12 attack.

Aranda told investigators he went to the mall "looking for someone to kill." According to the complaint, he had tried unsuccessfully to talk to women in the mall but their rejection "caused him to lash out and be aggressive." He said he had planned to kill an adult before choosing the child instead.

The boy, identified in court only as Landen, plunged almost 40 feet (12 meters) and needed multiple surgeries for head trauma and broken bones. No update on his recovery was provided in court Monday, though his parents described it as miraculous.

"Your act was evil and selfish, you chose to listen to the worst parts of yourself that day," the boy's father said in a statement read by prosecutor Chen Ann Townsend. "You chose evil over good and chose to take your hate and hurt out on my precious boy. That's where your impact on us stops, you will take nothing more from us."

Both parents, whose statements were full of references to their Christian faith, said they forgave Aranda because they believe God expects them to.
